

get clean on the green

Washing the car can be lots of fun. Did you know it can benefit your lawn, too?

It's true! Just pull your car onto the grass and wash it there. Your lawn will gladly soak up the water. Plus the grass will break down the soap and absorb any phosphates for use as fertilizer.

There's another bonus to getting clean on the green.

Keeping soapy water out of storm drains and ditches protects water quality. That's because anything that enters storm drains or ditches is headed straight for your local lake or river.

No filters, no treatment.

If you can't wash your car on the lawn, use a commercial car wash. Regulations require commercial car washes to collect and treat the wash water.
