

Risks to wildlife populations from chemicals and other stressors

Seminar presentation by Richard Bennett

University for Seniors Program, UMD, Duluth, MN, February 4, 2010

This presentation will review the history of risk assessment approaches for evaluating risks to wildlife populations and current research to improve methods for understanding population-level effects. The emphasis will be on issues related to pesticides, but other examples will be included.